PERSONAL ASSESEMENT

As a zealous individual with great ambitions to make a change in this field, I am a result oriented team player with strong leadership and interpersonal skills ready to adopt to any challenge of the industry.

CAREER OBJECTIVE

To attain a successful career in procurement and supply chain management hence becoming an authority in the practice for the present and the future.

SKILLS AND EXPERTISE

In my working line in various institutions, I have gained a number of skills that will be of use to your organization;

- Record management
Updating bin cards and stores ledger; preparing issuing note, preparing stores report
- Supplier Relationship Management - Relationship management is fundamental to creating value with suppliers and contract management. Through a more collaborative relationship procurement can be more innovative and achieve competitive advantage.
- Leadership - Strong leadership skills for procurement will not only help to create a successful team but also elevate the profile of procurement at senior levels.
- Strong negotiation skills Good relationships are the foundation, but strong negotiation skills are vital to delivering real value to a business. Negotiation isn't just about being tenacious in search of your goals, it's about understanding and exploring the needs and aims of the other party in any discussion. The ability to read people and recognize when to compromise based on that understanding is a skill you should nurture. Every negotiation is unique, that means ability to be flexible is a crucial part of success.
- Impeccable time-management- The ability to deliver procurement in a timescale that works for a business is important to reduce downtime and avoid barriers to productivity.
- Strategic thinking- Strategic thinking is about the ability to analyze beyond the everyday, to ensure you're keeping up to date with potential shocks or future demand. Involves ability to keep up to date on supply market shifts, future predicted demand, and how these things might impact business. Thus Help organization stay competitive in a dynamic modern marketplace.

Contract management-Following up orders to ensure on time deliveries of small works, goods and services. This is to ensure quality conformance to specifications set by the user department.
