I request to be considered for the position of Chief Principal Lecturer, which was advertised recently. I am currently working as a Senior Principal Lecturer at the Kenya School of Government, a position that I have held for a period of 5 years now. Prior to that, I served as a Principal Lecturer for a period of eight years after having worked in the Civil Service for a period of seventeen years as a Livestock Production Officer in various levels of the hierarchy.

During my tenure in the Civil Service, I served in various capacities including District Livestock Production Officer (District Head) in Rabai and Kuria East Districts among other positions. I have also managed several projects which include the Emergency Drought Recovery Programme and Arid Lands Resource Management Project both of which were in Tana River District as well as Instruments for Devolution Advice and Support (IDEAS) at the Kenya School of Government.

I hold a Doctorate and a Master's Degree in Project Management, A Bachelor's Degree in Range Management, A Diploma in Information Processing and a Certificate in Human Resource Management and Industrial Relations. I have also undertaken other Skills development trainings including Strategic Leadership Development Programme, Senior Management Course and Environmental and Social Impact Assessment. My publications include one book and six journal papers, the latest one having been published in the year 2024. I am affiliated to the Kenya Association of Project Managers.

I enclose my curriculum vitae and copies of some of my certificates for further details.

Thank you.
